MESSAGE:

Governor Palin,

My appologies for not getting this to survey on time. I think the state really needs to consider a new power plant for the University of Alaska Fairbanks. The 2 coal boilers were built in 1962 and installed in 1963. Basically they are 1950's technology retrofitted with newer controls. The fact still remains that they are 45 years old. Every year in May the Boilers are overhauled and it has been taking longer and longer each year because they are wearing out and parts are gettings scarce. The other 2 boilers run on fuel oil and boiler-4 is retrofitted with a combination gas/oil burner assembly. Coal is cheaper than gas but there is 10 times more equipment involved for burning coal and it is labor intensive to maintain. I understand there is another power plant in the works and it will most likely be a coal fired plant. We do need to keep up with the utility demands of the ever expanding University but I think the Univesity should be looking into multi fuel options such as waste oil and cooking oil (biodiesel). UAF does have a V18 10MW diesel engine generator that was originally intended to run on coal slurry. My comments here are very brief and incomplete but the point I want to make is that UAF should be leading the way with energy alternatives. A co-generation plant with multi-fuel options where student engineers can get real experience and training would be the way to leads us into the 21 century.

Thank you for your attention

Joe Krizek

Hi Sarah,

The staff at WHS will be having a breakfast on Friday Dec 21, at 8:00 in the morning. We will also be celebrating Mr. P. 50th birthday. We would like to invite you if you are in Wasilla to stop by and have breakfast with all of us. We are going to send him down to Missouri to see his friend Mike Luthes, I believe he was a science teacher here when you went to school. Thanks for all you do for out state. Happy Holidays! Miss Anne

Do the percentages of savings areas coincide with responses?

Can we tell where responses came from- did teacher's union lobby members to response for instance? (We need to be ready for questions like that, so pls ask yourselves what a reporter would want to ask tomorrow and let's get ready to answer).

Subject: Budget Survey Results

The final number of online survey respondents is 10,903.

We did have a few responses sent via email (they has online "issues") and we are checking to ensure that we have ALL entered and counted.

So this number could rise a bit.

The attached PDF is NOT Bberry friendly. The numbers for "first priority" responses are:

CBR 10.9 percent

Perm Fund 11.2 percent

Education Fund 25.9 percent

PERS/TRS 29.7 percent

Energy 13.3 percent

Transportation & Infrastructure 12.2 percent

So the survey results still dovetails with a savings plan that includes:

Education 2.6 billion

Transportation 1.0 billion

TRS/Retirement 450 million

CBR 379 million

Energy 250 million

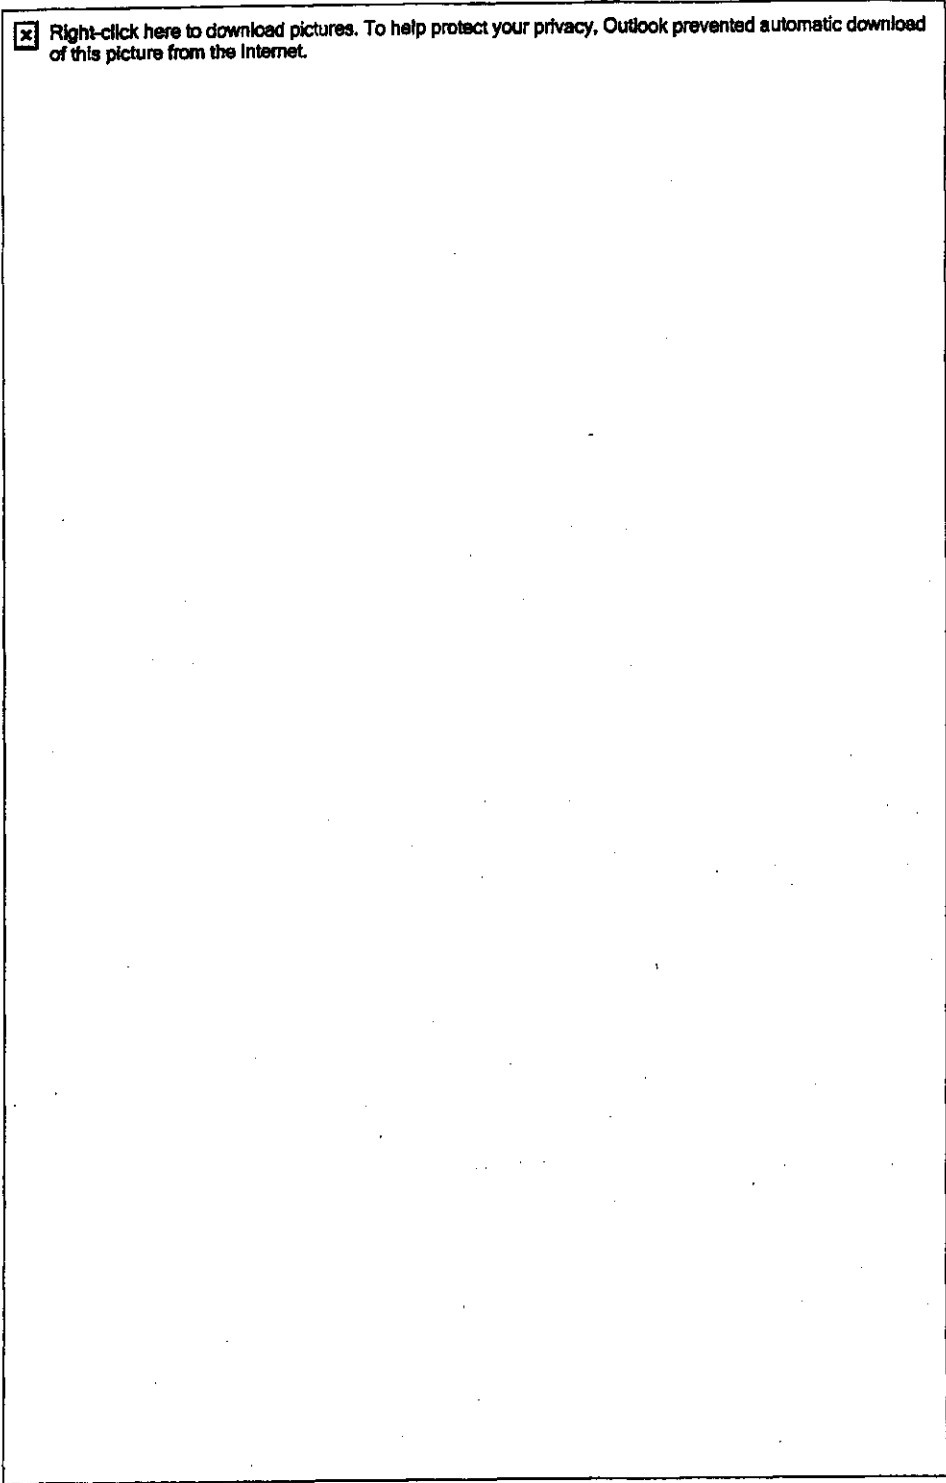
Subject: Sen. Dyson letter

Talis,

Thank you for forwarding Senator Dyson's letter to me. Indeed, I had a hand in bringing "results based budgeting" or "performance based budgeting" or "missions and measures" to the forefront in the nineties. At the time, we didn't have an Executive who embraced the concept and agencies went running away from such measures (Governor Knowles even vetoed my first bill on the subject). As Finance Committee Co-Chair I, along with others, forced the issue and all the budget subcommittees quizzed the agency reps on what results were being achieved for the spending.

Now, just the opposite has occurred. We have a governor willing to embrace accountability for results but a legislature unwilling to use this tool. Kind of an interesting conundrum. As a legislator, I concluded that unless the Executive powered this forward and moved the agencies and legislature to buy-in, results based budgeting would only be a marginally useful tool. And, without both Executive and Legislative buy-in, the budget will always only be about the numbers rather than about results for Alaskans. If you would ever like to talk about this, I'm happy to do so.

Regards,


Sean
